

TENNESSEE REPUBLICANS.

THEY HAVE A HOT FIGHT ON THE COLOR-LINE QUESTION.

An Unsmiling Delegation of "Edly Whites" Leaves the Convention Hall with Open Threats—The Ticket and the Platform.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 22.—The Republican State Convention, after remaining in session from 8 o'clock last night until after 3 o'clock this morning, reassembled at 10 o'clock to-day, and completed its labors this afternoon. Henry Clay Evans, former member of Congress from

The third district was abandoned for Governor Evans in 1890. In 1892, the district was re-created and was displaced, J. W. Baker of Davidson county, who has filled the position of chairman of the State Executive Committee of the party for several years, had a strong following, being supported by Congressman John C. Hoak of the Second district and the machine wing, but the Evanses, led by the late Governor, had a strong following in the counties mentioned. Ex-Congressman Evans is a resident of Chattanooga and a successful business man, and has long been one of the most prominent members of the party in Tennessee.

The most exciting feature of the Convention was the nomination of the majority report of the Committee on Credentials which seated the mixed delegation from Davidson county, The "Mild White" delegation from that county made a strong showing, but the "Mild Black" delegation, and several fights were narrowly averted during the night session.

At the close of the high dudgeon when the vote unseating them was announced.

It was not understood by this that the white delegation would be seated, but the white delegation franchised 35 howled Cook, Elihu Ashcraft, standing in his seat.

They are to leave the floor of

The "Convention" repudiated the Speaker. The Loyal Whites then fled out under derisive shouts, and the colored delegates, one after another, turned around, and, shaking his fist at the howling mob behind, said, "Yes, and so will I."

The platform adopted by the Convention declares for a system of protective duties, reduction of the tariff, and a tariff to be developed by American labor, receiving American wages, and we insist upon a balance the just rights of labor and capital, and "favor such legislation as will tend to establish the just relations between the two on a fair and equitable basis for each." It denounces the election of 1896 as a "gross fraud," and demands that the General Assembly and demands their repeal and opposes "a return to the wildest State party and the wildest State Democracy," and as the same existed before the war.

The silver plank is: "The American people, from the North to the South, are united in favor of the free coinage of silver, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, without limit, and that the amount to be coined shall be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, and that the Government shall have the power of the dollar, whether silver, gold, or REPEAL OF ANTI-REPEAL BILL.—A resolution concerning repeal of political disfranchisement was introduced and referred to the committee on education. A resolution providing for the holding of a referendum on the subject of repealing disfranchisement was tabled. MR. WIFE, FLORE MAE WAINWRIGHT FRASER has been having deserved my bed and board without cause. I hereby warn all and sundry persons not to harbor me. I will not pay any debt she has contracted for me.

J. A. FLAMER, JR.

Flore Mae Wainwright was one of the handsomest ladies in the city, as well as a very clever amateur. She had appeared in public on numerous occasions, and her recitations never failed to bring out a round of applause. She is 35 years old. Fraser is 35 years old, and was a widower when he met Flore. Miss Wainwright right decided to go on the stage, and went to see Henry Fulton, a newspaper publisher, to ask him to publish a notice in his paper that he was to marry to Fraser one Wednesday in June. Mrs. Fraser became infuriated with her at this sight, and, out of pretense of giving her a rehearsal, took her to a restaurant, a downtown restaurant the next evening. At dinner he proposed to her and she accepted.

On Friday, June 10, 1904, the day after the wedding, she met her mother, who decided that if the girl wanted to marry him she would interpose no objections. Then the play was given at the theatre, and the bride had numerous sample rooms to celebrate her achievement. He forgot to go home, and early on Saturday morning, in a somewhat dazed condition, he was taken to the county hospital by a truck and had a leg broken. He was taken to the county hospital in a patrol wagon, and he was taken to the county hospital in a patrol wagon in Seattle, and recovered his leg, but he never recovered his mind.

home at 311 Claremont avenue. Fraser was in great pain when he got to the house of his wife, and she told him, in a sympathetic way, that they got married right away. On Monday a minister was called in and they were married. For a little while the parental roof was over the heads of the young couple, but it did not prove satisfactory to either, and Fraser rented a house in Oaklawn and furnished it suitably. Therein he installed his wife, and for some time they lived happily together.

What caused the separation is not known. The wife says her husband is too fond of liquor, and she says that he has been drinking since he got to the office in La Salle street and inquired about the office at home and left a note to be delivered to her mother. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Fraser was called to the office and told that her husband had moved, and, it is said, told her mother that she had stood it as long as she could and was going to remain with them.

VALENSA LANGE IN DANGER,

Three Young Men Were Following Her When She Appealed to a Policeman.

Valessa Lange, a fifteen-year-old German girl, landed here last March from her home in Bremerhaven, and obtained a place with a family in Orange. The work there was very hard, and five weeks ago she gave it up, and went to board at 314 East Eighty-first street, in this city. The landlord promised to let her remain as long as her savings lasted. The savings lasted until last night, when she was put out.

Policeman Kruse of the East Twenty-second street station was standing at Twenty-second street and Second avenue last evening, when she approached him and asked for protection.

During Hobbbery in an Electric Car.
ALBANY, Aug. 25.—A daring robbery was committed this afternoon in an electric motor car coming from Troy on the Albany Railway at about 3 o'clock. The car contained a dozen people besides the motorman, conductor, and inspector. When about a mile above this city, near Menands, two men seized Mrs. Fannin Schermerhorn of Syracuse, who has been visiting relatives in Troy and was on her way here to take a train home, and while one held her, the other snatched a small leather bag containing $100 and fled.

The thing was so bold and done so quickly that no one in the car dared to interrupt the thief, who, in a twinkling, was out into the street. The inspector and a dozen others gave chase, and the robbers were caught after they had endeavored to escape by jumping into the car and running away. They gave their names as William Nasot and William Bailey, and were taken to the station.

Adolph's Father's Car Found.

The police of the Delancey street station notified Police Headquarters last night that they have in their possession an ebony gold-headed cane, on which is the inscription, "Adolph 10 Father, 58 Birthday."
